Watch out for bad fertilizer

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

Tobacco growers are likely aware that contaminated fertilizer has been identified in South Carolina and North Carolina causing significant injury to tobacco. This week we've learned that several hundred acres of damaged tobacco have been found in one county in Virginia.

At this point we don't know how widespread the problem is in Virginia. If you observe tobacco with apparent herbicide injury, we will be glad to assist you.

There were a few complaints about Furadan on tobacco last year. Growers did not feel that they were getting a response. I've had similar reports this year–horn worms are appearing where Furadan was used.

Some research plots are also showing poor response this year. There are at least three possible reasons: 1) Spring rains leached the Furadan out; 2) Dry weather has prevented the plant from taking up the material; 3) Insects have built up a resistance to Furadan. At this point, I would feel that the latter is not the problem, but it's more likely associated with weather conditions.

The Appomattox Dairymen will meet Saturday, July 7, at the Richard Robinson Dairy, at 7 p.m. Steaks will be served, so we'll need a pretty good head count.

I saw a top quality wheat crop on the John Goin farm. It's the new Freland wheat.

In order to be eligible to vote in the upcoming beef referendum, you'll need to mail your registration form by June 30.

The Burley assessment will increase from 5 cent to 9 cent this fall. This related, of course, to the "no net-cost tobacco program."

Bean leaf beetles are doing extensive damage to soybeans in the eastern portion of the state. No spray program is recommended until 1/3 of the foliage is destroyed.

Clover leaf beetles have destroyed some stands of beans when they were sod planted in clover or vetch. They simply moved from one plant to another to feed.

Preston Reid, extension soybean specialist, says, "The temperature we've experienced will result in loss of one inch of water every 2-¼ to 4 days." Young soybean plants can be severely damaged. Irrigation is a strong possibility, be sure to consider the cost/benefit relationship.

The hot weather has prevented the green peach aphid from building up. As temperatures moderate, keep an eye open for this pest on tobacco.

Insecticide baits (Dipel and Dylox) are the most effective treatment for budworm control.

Horn worms are beginning to appear in some fields–stay on top of this problem.

Parasitic weevils were distributed in two locations in Appomattox County that have a history of musk thistle infestation.

If you observe this thistle, I would like to see it so we can try to get it under control before it becomes a big problem. It has a beautiful pink bloom.

Several bags of wildlife feed patch seed are available at the Extension Office for 4-Hers who are interested. Wildlife food patches need to be planted by early July.

An excellent resource booklet for 4-Hers, farmers and others interested in wildlife has recently been produced by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. The 125-page book, Virginia's Wildlife, is full of information about Virginia animals, birds, fish, reptiles, amphibians, etc. Material in the book has been reprinted from past issues of the Virginia Wildlife magazine. The book sells for $2 and is available from Education Division, Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, P.O. Box 11104, Richmond, Va. 23230. Checks may be made payable to "Treasurer of Virginia."

It's time to begin plans for your 1984 Five County Fair exhibits. The new catalogs should be available by the end of July or early August. 4-H members and volunteer leaders should receive a copy of the new catalog through the mail. We'll also have a supply in the Extension Office.

July 2 is deadline for acreage reports

By TOM CONRAD
July 2 - Deadline for Crop Acreage Reports - July 2 is the deadline for reporting planted acreages for of corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, flue, fire and sun tobacco. Anyone who has any of these crops planted need to make their report to the ASCS office.

For farmers enrolled in the corn program, certification is necessary in order to be eligible for benefits.

Non-participating farmers need to report for the purpose of future programs. If there is a corn or sorghum base on the farm, but zero planted, then zero stands needs to be reported to maintain the base on the farm for future purposes. If there is no base on the farm but there is planted acreage, for corn or sorghum, a farmer should report in order to establish a base on the farm.

As far as tobacco in concerned, reporting is required in order to be eligible for price support. If there is an allotment on the farm, but there is zero planted, or it has not been leased off the farm, then a zero reports needs to be made for history preservation purposes.

If you have questions, they should be directed to the ASCS Office.

Burley Tobacco Leasing Deadline - Burley producers are reminded that July 2 is the deadline for lease and transfer of tobacco. This is different from pst years, in that prior to this year you could lease throughout the season. Don't let lei this new regulation catch you short. Be sure to take care of your leasing by the July 2 deadline.

Acreage Conservation Reserve (ACR) - Farmers participating in the wheat and/or feed grain program are reminded that the acreage conservation reserve land (set-aside) needs to be maintained. This means that an adequate stand of grass needs to be established to prevent erosion, weeds must be controlled, and it must be clipped between June 30 and August 15. In addition it cannot be grazed until after October 1 and no harvesting of hay is allowed for the 1984 season.

I will be spot checking ACR land during the summer. Maintenance defaults will constitute penalty.

Any questions you have concerning ACR land should be directed to the ASCS office.

Agricultural Conservation Program - Farmers that Have practices due tobe completed by the end of this month are remindeed to report completion to the office. At the time you report, you need you need to bring bills.
